

Glump Gesellschaft mbH introduces “Life4Alz”

The revolutionary digital assistant “Life4Alz” supports Alzheimer's sufferers in all situations of life through individually configurable memory aids.

MUNICH -- 31/01/2020 -- Glump GmbH releases its new Amazon Alexa skill “Life4Alz” today. “Life4Alz” takes over important management tasks in the everyday life of Alzheimer's patients. Support is provided through configurable lists that can be linked to events and are thus tailored to the individual.

"Unfortunately, the number of people affected by Alzheimer is steadily increasing. We see it as our responsibility to support them," says Vice President Leopold Leininger. "We would like them to live their daily lives as independently as possible."

One of the main aspects that speak for “Life4Alz” is its easy use. Events can be created via an included app as well as via Alexa, making it possible for relatives and caregivers to support a patient, even if not present. In addition, unlike conventional appointment apps, “Life4Alz” responds individually to the needs of Alzheimer’s patients and reminds them, for example, to take their mobile phones or keys with them.
